CLOSE VOTE IN TRACTION POLL

ROYALIST FIRST IN GERMAN VOTE FOR PRESIDENT

Fails of Majority; Second Election.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.)

BERLIN, March 30, 3 a. m.—Germany failed to elect a president in its first popular election yesterday.

Karl Jarres, the monarchist candidate, led the ballot with 10,400,000, and Otto Braun, Socialist, was second with 7,300,000. Former Chancellor Wilhelm Marks, the Catholic center party entry, was third with 3,500,000. Herr Hellmuth, Democrat, received 1,600,000. Ernst Thaelmann, communist, polled 1,800,000, and Dr. Held, the Bavarian People's party candidate, received 1,500,000. Gen. Eric Ludendorff, Fascist ultra-nationalist, was the last in popular favor with 300,000 votes.

As no candidate received a majority, a second or run-off election will be held on April 26. The German election law provides that either the candidates in yesterday's election or new ones can be submitted by the various parties or coalitions.

Liberals Have Bigger Vote.

The three republican or liberal parties, Socialists, Catholics, and Democrats, on present returns, show a strength of more than 20 per cent greater than that of the monarchist, nationalist, and conservative parties.

Leaders here this morning declared that if the Catholics made a coalition with the Socialists and Democrats, with Dr. Marx as their candidate, they can elect him in the runoff.

The nationalists are also flirting with the Catholic centrists and will attempt to make a coalition with them to back Dr. Jarres or some other man of strong nationalistic leanings.

Ludendorff Makes Poor Showing.

Gen. Ludendorff's showing was about 25 per cent of the German Fascist strength in the last Reichstag election. Many of the ultra-nationalists and monarchists voted for Dr. Jarres.

The Socialist party made substantial gains. The communists showed a loss of close to 1,000,000. Most of these votes went to the Socialists.

Ex-Kaiser Gets 15 Votes.

Among the comedy features of the election were fifteen votes cast for former Kaiser Wilhelm, in Coburg, and one for Germany's heavyweight champion boxer, Breitenthaler.

Only about 60 per cent of the voters went to the polls. This was due in part to the weather, and also to the "strike" of war and pre-war bondholders against the proposed law which would allow them a return of only 5 per cent of their investments.

Many officials and some of the candidates voted in a little Berlin saloon in Taubenbergstrasse. Foreign Minister Stresemann and his wife appeared there at 11 o'clock and were greeted with cheers. The foreign minister wanted to mark his ballot in a table in front of a polling booth, but election officers insisted that he use a booth. Herr Stresemann had a rather hard job squeezing into the narrow confines of the booth.

Ex-Kaiser's Wife Votes.

Former Kaiser Wilhelm's second wife, Princess Hermine, cast her ballot at Potsdam, where she arrived yesterday from a sanatorium. She voted for Dr. Jarres, as did Prince Eitel Friedrich.

Dr. Jarres voted at Duisberg.

Gen. Ludendorff refused to go to the polls in Munich. He does not believe that it is consistent with the dignity of a candidate to vote for himself.

Baby Born in Patrol Wagon
Going to County Hospital

A baby girl was born at Mrs. Norma Saunders, 400 North Clark street, in a police patrol wagon which was rushing her to the county hospital yesterday. Policeman John Landenauer, the chauffeur, broke speed regulations in an endeavor to beat the work after George Saunders, the husband, had appealed to the police, but the child was born two blocks from the hospital. Neighbors say that the mother and baby are doing nicely.

Signs $10,000 Contract to Keep Dry Act

"Now, Therefore, to this end, the undersigned have agreed together as follows:

"This restriction in the use of intoxicating liquors shall not apply to countries outside of the United States."

A. G. Goble of St. Louis, and R. A. Hoy of Houston, Texas, were two of the other signers. W. A. Garrett, the fourth signer, died since the signing of the contract.

Mr. Vauclain sailed today for Europe.

These words were recanvassed the second day to refute or verify the returns of the first day.

These figures indicate either that Mr. Wright has not commenced his campaign or if he has been working he has been ineffective in getting results. It is more probable that Mr. Wright has not started. More than 90 per cent of the votes canvassed in these two wards were colored.

The figures from the outlying districts are also in both proponents and opponents of the ordinance. In those areas it has been conceded that the ordinance would obtain a large vote in its favor because of the extension of the elevated roads and the construction of new surface lines which the ordinance provides for. If the thinly settled wards are strongly for the ordinance, that sentiment was not registered in the poll.

West Side Backers Called Idle.

The west side canvass is principally interesting because of the lack of results obtained by friends of the ordinance if they have been working. It is a 10 to 1 shot that they have been idle. The Democrats are in the large majority on the west side and it has been the popular belief that they are for the ordinance.

The straws obtained west of the river have not been obtained from all sections of that division of the city because of the lack of time and voters. If other parts of the west side show the same results which the canvassors reveal then the margin against the ordinance will be increased slightly. In a word, this is the point: On the south side the poll accounts for 3,903 straws, while the west side presented accounts for only 2,959 votes, yet the west side has more voters than the south side. It is therefore necessary to collect more straws on the west side than the south side to represent properly the sentiment west of the river.

Vote on the West Side.

The straws for and against the ordinance at the street intersections canvassed on the west side are as follows:

HUMANE SOCIETY WARS ON THE RODEO; CALLS IT U. S. BULLFIGHTING

Albany, N. Y., March 28.—The American Humane association has declared war on the rodeo. Announcement was made from the association's headquarters here today of the appointment of George A. H. Scott, Chicago; Mrs. Elizabeth H. Chapman, H. C. Peden, Marion, Mattie McCarroll, San Francisco, and Sidney H. Coleman, Albany, as a committee to study ways and means of "eliminating the cruel practices connected with the rodeo." This announcement was accompanied by a statement by E. K. Whitehead of Denver, Col., which termed the rodeo "our American analogue of the bullfight." Mr. Whitehead declared that the cruelty of the rodeo is not restricted to the actual entertainments but is prevalent in the preliminary practice of the participants.

measure. Perhaps that will be the result. The ordinance was amended on the floor of the council to provide for a subway in Madison street to Racine in the first period of construction, and then west to the city limits in the second period. Several intersections of Madison street were canvassed. The spot nearest the subway to be constructed in the first period gave a majority for the ordinance. Other spots farther west returned a majority against the ordinance.

HARRISON FIRES NEW BROADSIDE AT TRANSIT BILL

Raps Car Chiefs, Party Leaders, Bankers.

Former Mayor Harrison issued another statement of eleven pages yesterday urging comprehensive subway construction and the defeat of the Dever transit ordinance. He took stock in several directions.

He lambasted the bankers, harpooned Samuel Insull rapped Melvin A. Taylor, slapped George E. Brennan, took a fling at Bion J. Arnold, referred to the "Pooh Bah engineer-experts of the City club," charged that "enough selected votes were stolen to put over the 1907 ordinance" and then predicted that trick will be repeated soon.

The former mayor started on President Taylor of the First National. "Another traction-banker Richmond in the field, one Taylor. Evidently arriving on the scene at too late a date to know just what was going on while I was mayor, he thinks I spent my time fishing. So he may know I was on the job, let me tell him that for twelve years I headed off all traction steals."

Brennan Next on Spit.

"Of course, the Democratic central committee is right," reads the Harrison statement. "It is honest by George Brennan and George is Samuel Insull's friend. Whether the committee were for or against the ordinance would be of small import were it not for the counting of the votes." Harrison cited A year ago Gen. Dunn and I were candidates for delegates at large to the Democratic national convention. Political reporters on local papers have told me that at a safe calculation 50,000 votes were illegally counted to assure our defeat and the election of the lame ducks on the organization slate. Eighteen years ago in the referendum on the 1907 traction ordinance the needed votes were stolen to put over the ordinance. Unwise sharp watch is kept the tactic will be repeated enough votes will be stolen to the Dever ordinance.

That is the real danger that lurks behind the sinister support of the Democratic committee."

Opens Fire on Engineers.

Mr. Harrison says that his comprehensive subway plan, submitted to a referendum in 1914 and defeated, was prepared by "John J. Reynolds, Edward C. Shankland and John Ericson, three thoroughly competent engineers whose professional standing would certainly stack up favorably in comparison with that of Bion J. Arnold and the Pooh Bah engineer-experts of the City club." Mr. Harrison desires "the traction press to advise the public what salaries Mr. Arnold and his two associates on the board of supervising engineers have been drawing for the past 10 years and what services in that time they have rendered."

Mr. Harrison confides that Maj. R.

Kelker Jr. aided his engineers in preparing his comprehensive subway plan. Kelker is now the engineer of the council local transportation committee which prepared the physical plan of the Dever ordinance. The former mayor thinks that Kelker "down deep in his heart" favors the Harrison plan over the Dever plan.

Compares Subway with "L."

In the remaining six pages of his statement Mr. Harrison takes up his traction argument.

"Would a great subway be too costly?" asks the five time mayor. "New York has learned that regardless of the initial expense, subways are a paying investment. No agency has contributed more to the fabulous growth of New York population and wealth in the last twenty years than the subways. To argue that the elevateds can give the same character of rapid transit as a subway would be comparable to urging the old fashioned cable as a substitute for the trolley.

More from the former mayor reads:

"We are told there is no better plan in sight; it is the Dever ordinance or chaos. Let me outline a plan. Vote down the Dever ordinance on April 7. Serve notice the following day in unmistakable terms that Chicago is bound of monies, with traction bonds of Giv. Morris, Black and Bush, and the traction bankers their $165,000,000 and tell them to get out of the way of progress."

"Call in Disinterested Men."

The millions the city would pay would be a big price, but it would be worth it just as well for all the disinterested honest men.

Then let the mayor call in a few disinterested men who have Chicago's real interests at heart. Leave out the chaps who want to get on the board of control, as well as those who are licking their chops in anticipation of the possible fat com-tracts the future holds now.

"Build an immediate subway that gives a genuine rapid transportation to South Chicago, the town of Lake, to Cicero and Austin, to the towns of Jefferson and Lake View.

Don't hitch those communities up to an antiquated elevated system don't give the elevateds a strangle hold on Chicago for forty years to come. It is another idle or dishonest to say that disinterested men later on could be extended as the demand would require.

New York, Paris, London, Berlin, and Buenos Aires have real subways. Not a dinky contraption that would be a mere make believe."

POLICE FAIL TO FIND TRACE OF TRAIN ROBBERS

Salesman Explains Valise Tag Picked Up.

Police and American Railway Express officials early this morning were still without a clue that promised solution of the robbery of an express car on a New York Central train early yesterday in which two bandits escaped with loot estimated at $1,000.

They had hoped Arthur F. Planck Jr., 22 years old, 7222 Luehrs avenue, might be able to give them some information of value when a valise tag bearing his name was found near the railway station in Laporte from where the robbers fled after leaping from the looted train.

Young Salesman Questioned.

Young Planck was taken into custody for questioning early this morning by Capt. John E. Mather, at the detective bureau. He said he is a supervising salesman for the Ford Motor company and had been in Laporte Saturday on business.

"I left there at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon and came directly home," he said. "I didn't know the tag on my valise was gone until the police came to my home tonight. It must have dropped off when I appeared at the station to take the train."

Police expressed confidence that Planck's story was true.

Messenger Grilled.

Meanwhile Howard R. Young, express messenger in charge of the car at the time of the robbery, was undergoing an all day grilling at Cleveland. It is expected Young, parts of whose story are not believed, will be returned to Chicago today for further questioning.

Young says the bandits, nattily attired in gray suits, soft hats, and gray overcoats, handed him a note at Englewood signed by F. M. Hotchkiss, express agent, authorizing them to ride in the car as far as Laporte. This note proved later to be a forgery.

"They took all right and I let them in," said Young. "In a moment they stuck guns up my nose and made me hold up my hands. They took my own gun, unloaded it, and threw it at my feet. They bound my hands and feet, stuffed a gag into my mouth, and then set to work to rifle the car. At Laporte the robbers turned off the lights in the car, slipped out the door, and ran for their car."

Policeman Shot in Neck as He Leaves Patrol Barn

Policeman Joseph M. Loftus of the Des Plaines street station was shot in the neck last night as he left the police patrol barn, 149 North Union avenue. His injury is not serious. Recently Loftus has been stationed at Fulton street fish market, where there has been trouble among rival dealers. He said the attack may have grown out of some action he had taken at the market, but was inclined to the view that he was wounded by a stray bullet.

The wireless messages have intercepted a message reporting the collision of the American steamer Edenton and the French schooner Ville de Bassens, 35 miles east of Barcelona. The message did not disclose the condition of the American ship, which, presumably, was undamaged.

CHURCH BODY URGES WORLD BE GOOD FRIENDS

MONTEVideo, Uruguay, March 29.—[By the Associated Press.]—The education conference of the Christian World Congress closed its sessions last night by adopting the findings of a commission which studied the problems of education in North America and in schools in South America.

The findings included a declaration that it was the purpose to develop institutions which deserve the approval of each government; to impart to pupils a spirit of international friendliness; to increase patriotism in the various countries and train leaders for the next generation.

The hope was expressed in the findings that a way might be found to obtain official acceptance of certain proposed substitutes for the courses established by law, leading to professional degrees where the substitute courses are of equal cultural value, as is done in the state of Minas Geraes, Brazil.

ALLEGED RAPIST OPERATED ON BY N. CAROLINA MOB

Raleigh, N. C., March 29.—A long distance telephone call from Deputy Sheriff Luther Peel at Williamston, N. C., tonight said a mob of fifty men forced its way into the Martin county jail early this morning and took Joseph A. Needelman, salesman for a tobacco company, into a nearby patch of woods where they performed a serious operation.

Needelman was charged with assaulting a 17 year old girl whom he had taken riding. The victim of the operation now is in a Washington, N. C., hospital, where his condition is regarded as serious, the deputy said.

A knife was used for the operation. Peel said, after which the mob dispersed. The victim was found a few minutes later.

U. OF C. TESTS APPARATUS FOR MAKING GOLD

Alchemists in several countries are close to their age-old quest—the transmutation of the base metals into gold—according to an article in the University of Chicago last night. Mercury is the metal used in the experiments, and the scientists say now that the measure of success will depend on the quality of the mercury—or quicksilver—used.

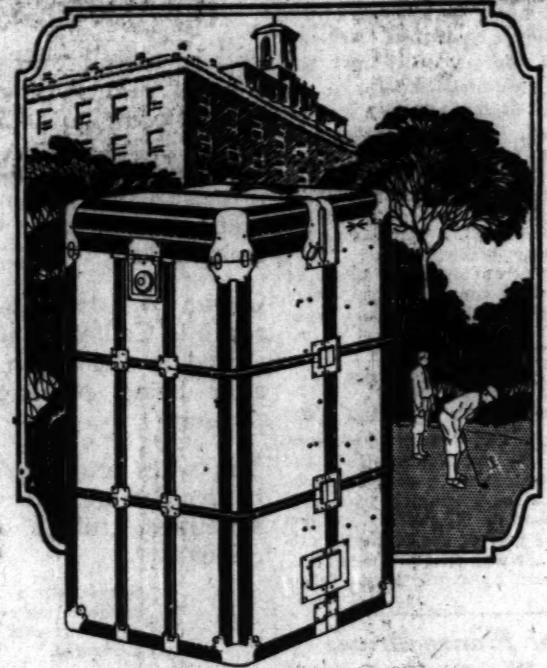

Workers at the Kent chemical laboratory at the university are experimenting on a new machine, one just invented, which is said to be extremely efficient. They already have been able by its use to change the weight of the mercury put into the machine, but so far are still baffled in their efforts to change its appearance. The new mercury now put in, it is said, has the weight of gold, though it does not yet look like it.

Inside the machine, while it is at work, the tiny atoms of mercury leap about furiously at a lightning-like speed, seven times as fast as the speediest passenger train, or at about a rate of 420 miles an hour, or more. This causes the lighter substance in mercury to rise, leaving the heavier in the machine after the process has been repeated some millions of times.

ROME WINDOWS SHATTERED BY HAIL BARRAGE

ROME, March 29.—[United News.]

For the second time in three days, Rome has been bombarded violently by hailstones. Hundreds of windows were shattered by this second barrage and in the streets, white piles of icy pellets remained for some hours as a reminder of the storm.

With the hail came rains in the mountains, raising the surface of the Tiber perilously near the banks of its banks.

From all over the country come reports of wintry cold, rain storms, hail, gales and floods, in contrast to the temperate weather of January and February. The seasons seem reversed and the damage to farmers is reported to have been heavy in many districts.

NOTED EDUCATOR LAMENTS REIGN OF THE ATHLETE

Dominates College Life, Is Criticism He Makes.

New York, March 29.—Domination by athletics of the intellectual life of American colleges and universities was deplored by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, in his annual report, made public today.

He also appealed for "imperialization of our overburdened educational machinery" because, he said, "liberal education does not consist in imparting knowledge, but in training the ideals and powers of the mind."

"Whatever may be the weakness in our American system of education," he added, "there is sincere ground for the belief that our people will find their way to a system of schools that will make for good citizenship and that will promote a high quality of human life."

Reference to Athletics.

Discussing college athletics, Dr. Pritchett said:

"Today the outside activities of the college overshadow and run counter to the intellectual life. Athletics, in large measure professional in its methods and organization, fill a larger place in the eyes of students and even of the public than any other one interest."

"No scholar in the undergraduate life of one of our universities or colleges would expect to receive the recognition or appreciation given to a successful football player. A dozen new activities call for the time and energy of the students. The college is no longer distinctively an intellectual agency."

They Become Abuses.

"No reasonable man will object to the employment of these activities, for example, athletic, in their due perspective. But when they are allowed to dominate the intellectual life of the colleges they become abuses."

"The paid coaches, the professional organization of college athletics, and the demoralization of students by participation in the use of extravagant sums of money, constitute a reproach to American colleges and to those who govern them."

Mikhalkov, Molokov and Atarbehoff, three important soviet officials while enroute from Tiflis to Souzhom, was actually shot down by a Georgian revolutionist detachment. M. ### FORBES HAS STROKE ON EVE OF FIGHT FOR NEW TRIAL; MAY DIE

Philadelphia, Pa., March 29.—[Special.]—Almost on the eve of his departure for Chicago, where he was to have presented a writ of supersedeas in an effort to obtain a new trial, Col. Charles R. Forbes, chief figure in the veterans' bureau scandal, was stricken with apoplexy, according to a message received by friends in this city.

Because of a heart affection the stroke resulted in death, according to physicians. Col. Forbes was visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Harry Judkins, near Boston, and has been removed to the Hart Hospital, near Boston.

He had accompanied his mother, Mrs. C. R. Forbes, to her country home and was returning to his sister's home. When informed of her son's condition Mrs. Forbes was stricken and is said to be in a serious condition.

Dr. Edward K. Tullidge, who has been Col. Forbes' physician for many years, has been called to Boston. He said the stroke probably is the result of an unknown tropical infection received while Col. Forbes was making his South American trip for President Harding.

GIRL MATICIDE'S TRIAL, MAY END IN MIND TESTS

San Francisco, Cal., March 29.—Counsel for both sides indicated today that the trial of 16 year old Dorothy Ellington, charged with the murder of her mother, would proceed tomorrow, though persons in close touch with the case saw a strong possibility that the defense would present a formal motion to end the trial and impanel a new jury to determine whether the girl is insane at present.

Dr. Fred P. Clark, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane at Stockton, has issued a statement saying he considers the girl now insane, basing his judgment on close observation of her behavior in the courtroom. It was understood that other alienists, subpoenaed by the defense, were examining the girl at the county jail today.

COOLIDGE PLANS FORESHADOWED BY FIRST STEPS

Changes Are Indicated by Appointments.

Washington, March 29.—[Special.]—Within less than a month from his inauguration by mandate of the people, President Coolidge has made several important moves which promise to have a marked bearing upon the record of his administration.

Three cabinet officers have taken office since Mr. Kellogg, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, and Attorney General Sargent. The appointment of Mr. Kellogg has resulted in no material alteration of foreign policies, but the selection of Mr. Jardine means a marked change in the conduct of the department of agriculture. Mr. Jardine is expected to show a somewhat different attitude than his predecessor in the administration of his department.

Conservative Tendency Shown.

Other appointments, such as those of Alfred P. Dennis on the tariff commission and Thomas F. Woodcock on the interstate commerce commission, and the appointment of Charles E. Warren, attorney general, have shown President Coolidge's tendency toward conservatism and his unwillingness to be stampeded by radicals and critics.

The changes in procedure adopted by the federal trade commission, which is for the first time responsible to the influence of the Coolidge administration, foreshadow a revolutionary change in the commission's attitude toward business.

In taking the initiative toward a second conference on the limitation of armament, the President has indicated that he intends to pursue a definite and helpful policy in connection with European affairs.

In Accord with Coolidge.

Secretary Jardine, in outlining his policies, has followed him in completely accord with the traditional agricultural questions and displays little sympathy with some of the farm relief measures, such as the McNary-Haugen bill, which had the backing of the late Secretary Wallace.

There already have been several resignations in the department of agriculture and Mr. Jardine has made no secret of the fact that he intends to keep on shaking things up.

Attorney General Sargent has exhibited a personality different from that of his predecessor. From what he has said so far the impression has been given that he will be a firm proponent of law enforcement, but that he will not harass litigants unnecessarily.

FATALLY INJURED BY STREET CAR.

James Kandel, 47, of 5610 South Throop street was fatally injured when he was struck by a street car at 12:15 a.m. yesterday morning. James Haag, 2602 West 58th street, the masterman, told the coroner he had been in the street at the time of the accident not to hear the gong.

BUNDESEN URGES SPRING CLEANING TO FIGHT FLIES

Now, while spring warmth tempts one out of doors in the evening, is the time to fight next summer's flies and mosquitoes, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, health commissioner, says in his health letter issued this morning.

By cleaning up back yards and alleys, filling in holes where summer rains may stagnate, and clearing away all old bottles and cans where flies and mosquitoes can breed, half the battle against the pests of summer can be won, he says.

If every one would clean house thoroughly right now, the health commissioner advises, most of the flies just beginning to hatch would be killed before warm weather comes.

RICH OLD SCOT HEARS HIGHLAND HAGGIS CALL ACROSS 7,000 MILES!

New York, March 29.—When the Cameron of the Anchor line sailed for Glasgow yesterday it carried among its passengers Andrew K. Weir, 75, a New York health commissioner, says in his health letter issued this morning.

By cleaning up back yards and alleys, filling in holes where summer rains may stagnate, and clearing away all old bottles and cans where flies and mosquitoes can breed, half the battle against the pests of summer can be won, he says.

The aged Scot has lived in Honolulu for sixty years. He has acquired a fortune, but is living in the steerage.

He wants to see his native hills of Aberdeen and bring back some heather to plant in Honolulu, he said. No body told him he would not be permitted to bring the sprigs into the country.

He has been to the British Isles.

MEXICO CLAIMS IT HAS CAPITAL FOR NEW BANK

Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service
Mexico City, March 29.—It was stated officially today that the government will found the much talked of national bank of emission with a capital of $25,000,000 pesos ($37,500,000) from the government treasury within three months. Twenty million pesos ($10,000,000) have been saved in the last three years and more than 20,000,000 pesos ($15,000,000) of back debts liquidated. On the basis of this saving and in view of heavy retrenchments of the administration, it is stated by an official close to the government that the necessary funds will be available to found the National bank, which is badly needed to facilitate commercial and banking transactions.

KIMBALL

"Like a New Melody"

Often you have noted how a favorite composition seems to gain or lose its appeal, according to the conditions under which it is played. The phrases that have often thrilled you seem at other times less vital.

Play the air on a KIMBALL!

The melody will appeal to you again with an almost electrifying force. The rare, delicate beauty of the KIMBALL's rich tones will express its utmost meaning, from the ringing crescendo chords with their message of fiery passion to the undulating pathos of the softest strains.

In all KIMBALL models you will note this "vitality" of tone—in the parlor or larger grands, the small grands, uprights and players.

And in the KIMBALL Phonograph you find an excellence that hardly any other make possesses—an accuracy in reproducing the "natural" tone of every type of voice or instrument that gives the utmost realism to each performance.

Great production capacity has made KIMBALL prices exceptionally moderate and the "one-price"—the price that you and all others pay—is marked on each instrument.

Can you come today for a demonstration?

WOMAN BEATEN SENSELESS IN FIGHTING THIEF

When Mrs. Anna Ryan, 34 years old, 111 South Laflin street, attempted to resist two bandits Saturday night, she was beaten, senseless and robbed of $100.

Mrs. Ryan was returning home after shopping when the two thugs descended at Laflin and Adams streets. One of them pointed a revolver at her and demanded her purse. She started to scream, and knocked the revolver from the man's hand. His companion picked up the weapon and struck her several times over the head until she lost consciousness.

A passing automobile who saw her took her to the county hospital, where she is in a serious condition.

Pulling Down the Cost of Good Inquiries

To no small degree the success of this organization in producing profitable results for its clients is due to our wide experience with mail order and traced-result advertising.

There is no more exacting test of an advertising plan or advertising copy. Success in mail order advertising demands definite knowledge of markets, products, mediums and follow up. Thus we have learned to demand from every advertising dollar a maximum of return; to extract every possible by-product value; not only to prepare good advertising but to make use of it.

In our new book, "Four Square Advertising," we tell something of our methods developed in over 20 years' experience. We will gladly send a copy to any interested executive upon request.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

In one of England's recent famous cases the widow of Alfred Francis Waterhouse won a verdict of $60,000 from Lady Wilson-Barker, having brought an action to recover money Lady Wilson-Barker had obtained from Waterhouse in the course of his infatuation for her. Sir David Wilson-Barker also had been included in the action as the husband of the vamping lady, but the judge acquitted him with the comment:

"It is silly nowadays to say that husbands have authority over their wives like the old days when the great lawyer, Seddon, held a man who keeps a wife is the same as a man who keeps a monkey—responsible for its mischief."

In primitive relations the woman got a protector and provider. The man got a mother for his children. As marriage laws were evolved the man controlled the woman and was responsible for her. She did as he said. If she attempted to leave him he could bring her back and the law would compel her return. He put a ring on her finger at marriage. That meant that one was around her neck. She promised to obey.

The theory of marriage with its chattel and property rights involved was harsh and even degrading to womanhood, but the chances are that many marriages were as they are now, contented and voluntary adjustments to a mutuality of interest. There were herpested husbands when the wife, theoretically a chattel, had the stronger will and ruled the house, but women had been trained to a deferential attitude and there was a disposition to regard the lord of the house as the lord.

Undoubtedly men had better ideas of themselves in domestic relations than they have now. They came more nearly getting away with murder and not being questioned in it.

Gradually men lost their superiority, but they retained their responsibilities. A Georgian square, if his wife went to her mother, could go after her and drag her back by the hair and give her a licking if she did not behave herself. When a modern wife goes to her mother the husband may wait until legal desertion has been established and then get a divorce. He has no other recourse if she wants to shake him.

A wife has few legal obligations. The man must support her and her children. There is no obligation that she shall keep house for him if she doesn't want to. She need not cook his meals or wash the dishes or the children's faces. If a wife made a man's home unpleasant for him day by day, neglected her work, and did as she pleased, but did not legally misbehave, about the best the husband could do would be to find a sympathetic judge and get a divorce for mental cruelty, and the chances are the wife would convince the judge that the husband spent his money on moon and was out nights.

The law makes the man the mark. If he has to work to support the family he must work. If he tries to get away and forget his responsibilities he will be hunted out and made to meet them. If he misbehaves himself and his wife divorces him the liability for the support of his ex-wife continues.

Some women in the United States are trying to remove what they consider female disabilities in some of the states by a constitutional amendment. If complete equality of sexes were established by law it would be the man who would be emancipated from obligations to which he now is bound by law not applied to the woman. Complete equality would assume that the woman wanting a divorce was just as able to support herself as the man. No more alimony for her than for him.

The wife is protected during the man's life and after his death. He is responsible for her debts, unless he takes legal steps to prevent her from contesting them.

The English judges may rule that the wife is no longer a monkey for whose mischief the husband is responsible, but the law still pins many of her acts on him, however much he may have lost the ability to control them.

Nevertheless, in most marriages the laws have no effect. Husband and wife are living their lives together in affection, respect, and cooperation of work. The man wants to work and provide for his family. That is his measure of manhood. The woman wants a home in which she is the manager. She wants to care for her children, bring them up properly, see that the home is well kept, and that the meals are nourishing. She does the work or she sees that it is done, and in most of the homes she does it herself.

A JOB FOR THE HEIR APPARENT.

They say the Prince of Wales is really a traveling salesman for British industry and that's why the British business men are only too glad to pay the bills when he goes globe trotting. They've got

H. M. S. Repulse all slicked up to take him to South America and it's a pleasure to see the good ship sail.

The theory is that when the prince dances with the native heiress, her papa buys his steel rails at Birmingham, Eng. This seems so reasonable that we ought to copy the idea. There's Charles Dawes, our fellow citizen, the Vice President and heir apparent. Before Eddie learned manhood he was just like our general. He didn't have anything to do except figure on the big job ahead. When Dawes took his work seriously the senate got red headed; so they won't care how long he stays away. Yes, let's send him to South America before the prince adds it to the British empire. The first man on the job with a next line of samples has the edge.

Of course, the Vice President will have to play the game his own way. He'd better not dance too much and we don't seem to recall reading anything about his pole ponies. He thinks squash is something to eat. But in the matter of high power he will make the prince look like a velocipede.

When our Mr. Dawes sets out with his sample case he won't go in a ship named the Repulse. He never heard the word.

SANITARY DISTRICT LANDS.

The sanitary district owns 9,245 acres of land, most of it adjoining the canal and its branches. The property is valued at $40,000,000 or more, but is lying idle. Only a small part of it has been leased. The board is willing to sell more of the property to get money to buy sites for the sewage disposal plants which the government has required the district to construct.

This is as it should be. The land was acquired originally because it was thought the canal might some day have to be widened and also because the building of the canal increased property values. It was rightly thought that the public which was building the canal should reap the increment. Now we know the channel never will be widened and the increment is ripe for harvest.

Parts of the district's lands, such as the strips adjoining the Evanson channel, are admirably adapted for parks. The rest should be sold with as much speed as is consistent with obtaining a fair price.

SENATOR WHEELER INDICTED.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana has been indicted by a special federal grand jury in Washington. He is charged, with two others, with conspiracy to obtain illegal use and possession of public domain for the purpose of prospecting for oil and gas. Edward S. Booth, former solicitor of the interior department, and Gordon Campbell of Montana, an oil prospector, were indicted with him.

Senator Wheeler also was indicted in Montana. The investigation was coincident with his campaign as candidate for Vice President on the La Follette ticket. A Senate committee under Senator Borah investigated the charges and found for Senator Wheeler.

Senator Wheeler is entitled to the presumption of his innocence. He accused Harlan Stone, then attorney general, now on the United States supreme bench, of political partisanship when grand jury action was begun in Washington. The department of justice is entitled to the presumption that in bringing Senator Wheeler to trial it is performing its duty. A senatorial inquiry does not necessarily exhaust the evidence. It may be supposed that the trial will and the attorney general is as much entitled to the presumption of honesty in public service as is Senator Wheeler.

The theory of marriage with its chattel and property rights involved was harsh and even degrading to womanhood, but the chances are that many marriages were as they are now, contented and voluntary adjustments to a mutuality of interest. There were herpested husbands when the wife, theoretically a chattel, had the stronger will and ruled the house, but women had been trained to a deferential attitude and there was a disposition to regard the lord of the house as the lord.

Undoubtedly men had better ideas of themselves in domestic relations than they have now. They came more nearly getting away with murder and not being questioned in it.

Gradually men lost their superiority, but they retained their responsibilities. A Georgian square, if his wife went to her mother, could go after her and drag her back by the hair and give her a licking if she did not behave herself. When a modern wife goes to her mother the husband may wait until legal desertion has been established and then get a divorce. He has no other recourse if she wants to shake him.

A wife has few legal obligations. The man must support her and her children. There is no obligation that she shall keep house for him if she doesn't want to. She need not cook his meals or wash the dishes or the children's faces. If a wife made a man's home unpleasant for him day by day, neglected her work, and did as she pleased, but did not legally misbehave, about the best the husband could do would be to find a sympathetic judge and get a divorce for mental cruelty, and the chances are the wife would convince the judge that the husband spent his money on moon and was out nights.

The law makes the man the mark. If he has to work to support the family he must work. If he tries to get away and forget his responsibilities he will be hunted out and made to meet them. If he misbehaves himself and his wife divorces him the liability for the support of his ex-wife continues.

Some women in the United States are trying to remove what they consider female disabilities in some of the states by a constitutional amendment.

If complete equality of sexes were established by law it would be the man who would be emancipated from obligations to which he now is bound by law not applied to the woman. Complete equality would assume that the woman wanting a divorce was just as able to support herself as the man. No more alimony for her than for him.

The wife is protected during the man's life and after his death. He is responsible for her debts, unless he takes legal steps to prevent her from contesting them.

The English judges may rule that the wife is no longer a monkey for whose mischief the husband is responsible, but the law still pins many of her acts on him, however much he may have lost the ability to control them.

Nevertheless, in most marriages the laws have no effect. Husband and wife are living their lives together in affection, respect, and cooperation of work. The man wants to work and provide for his family. That is his measure of manhood. The woman wants a home in which she is the manager. She wants to care for her children, bring them up properly, see that the home is well kept, and that the meals are nourishing. She does the work or she sees that it is done, and in most of the homes she does it herself.

The law is there for the cases which do not go right, but even with the American liberality of divorce laws, which permit the separation of people when one or both are unhappy, the failures are few compared with the successes.

Laws governing marriage will not generally affect a community, because most people do not need them. Many a woman would not appeal to law if she found that a husband who had been kind, a good provider, amiable, and respectful of her has been involved in a master.

BISONS THREATEN STAMPEDE FROM PALOS PARK FIRE

Forest Preserve Herd Is Calmed by Keepers.

(Picture on back page.) A buffalo stampede, a miniature replica of crushing waves of countless thousands of mad beasts, common to the west in frontier days, is believed to have been narrowly averted early yesterday when fire broke out in the Palos park forest preserve district. Here are pictures of a herd of eighteen half wild buffaloes recently imported from their native Colorado plains. Shortly after the flames, believed to have been accidentally started by a careless motorist, began sweeping through the dead grass and fallen leaves in the direction of the little herd, uneasiness appeared to seize the buffaloes.

Leader Warns His Herd. The leader, a huge bull, threw up his head in alarm and sounded the ancient danger signal of his race to his herd of cows.

Like magic a tremor of terror ran through the herd. The animals became alert with every primal instinct as the smell of smoke bore down upon them.

But prompt action on the part of county police and preserve rangers averted a possible panic among the animals. The buffaloes were steered into a section of the forest where they would be safe from the fire and where the disturbing odors could not reach them.

Custodian Calms Animals.

Later George Michelson, custodian of the herd, hastily summoned by the police, arrived and kept close watch over the animals until the fire had with difficulty been subdued. The presence of the familiar figure of Michelson appeared to restore courage to the buffalo, and soon they were laxly watching the work of the fire fighters as they nibbled at the first grass shoots of spring.

It was only after hours of hard fighting, however, which several fire companies from the Beverly Hills section and from the village of Mount Greenwood aided, that the fire was brought under control. At one time the flames threatened to destroy several stacks of hay used to feed the buffaloes.

SMEETS, GERMAN SEPARATIST, DIES OF BULLET WOUND

[By the Associated Press.]—Joseph Smeets, well remembered as the German separatist leader, has died here and was quietly laid at rest on Friday with no show of that display which might have been his had he succeeded in that for which he fought. Smeets was shot and seriously wounded at Cologne on March 17, 1923, and he secretary was killed. He was long in recovering from this attack, and left Cologne in the face of continued threats. It is believed his death was caused by infection of the wound, from which the bullet had never been extracted.

For several years Smeets was a strong advocate of secession of the Rhineland from Germany. He was described as representing the monarchist party of the Rhineland, and those behind the movement were believed to have decided upon Smeets as the Rhineland republic's provisional president.

How Much Do You Pay for Being Poor?

From a Service Station Customer:

Making out my income tax return a few days ago, I went over my last year's cancelled checks. And, very much to my astonishment, I came across a number of these checks which told a very interesting story—"The Cost of Being Poor."

I am not penniless, but at times I have found myself lacking the ready cash to take advantage of particularly attractive "bargains." And when the time came that I actually needed the things, I have had to pay the full price for them.

For instance: one of my checks paid for a $65.00 suit of the same grade that was offered about six weeks prior to my purchase for $39.50—a net loss to me of $25.50. Another check for a pair of $12.50 shoes which were offered at a clearance sale about a month previous for $9.85. Another check—and that was the worst—went for a dentist's bill—$55.00, which could easily have been paid with a $10.00 bill two months previous, had I not neglected my teeth due to a lack of ready cash, and besides I would have avoided a lot of unnecessary pain.

All in all I figured that it cost me at least $500.00 last year for being poor. And so I went to the Service Station and they showed me how to plan my income and outgoing to assure at all times a fair supply of ready cash to meet not only the unlooked for emergencies, but also to take advantage of many money-saving opportunities. It is worth while. It may be worth much more.

The Ensemble Suit Introduces a Cape To Carry Out the Mode of Flares

THE flare is undoubtedly the thing this season, the fluttering line is increasingly popular. The Ensemble Suit augments its established modishness by adopting these lines in a new model which combines a dashing black satin cape, bordered with kit fox, with a dress of gray crepe faille. The dress is delightfully embroidered with Greek motifs in bright colors. Unusual at $150.

One of our latest French models shows a dress and coat of imported silk in Venezia blue. The coat is bordered with gray fox, lined with printed chiffon and faced with multicolored ribbon; the same ribbon, appliqued with silver thread, makes unique trimming for coat and dress. Pictured at right above.

A CHARMING silvery effect, in its transparency and its delicate interweaving of silver threads with the hair braid, this is a delightful example of the new selection now in the French and Debutante Salons.

And to the already gracious softness of the real hair or pyroxylin hair braids are added the choice of exquisite pastel colors and the becoming trimming—silken flowers, newly imported cork flowers and many others.

POINCARE VOICES NEW WARNING OF GERMAN PERIL

BY HENRY WALES,
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

Copyright 1925. By The Chicago Tribune.

PARIS, March 23.—In his first important political speech of this year former Premier Raymond Poincare at the 12th D'Urfé d'Urfé warned France to reject the German proposal for a guarantee and security pact, and he urged that there be no reductions in armaments while Germany remains a potential danger.

"Germany is now asking the return of a portion of the territory attributed to Poland by the Versailles treaty and inhabited by Poles," he said. "If France and the allies grant this to Germany, and if they seek to calm her by partial concessions, they will increase her ambitions and further her plans for the reconstitution of the greater Germany which Herr Stresemann dreams about.

Wants No New Signatures.

"The population of Lorraine realizes that their future rests on the settlement of the Rhine issue, and any blow against Poland will mark preparation for a coup against France as Sodoma prepared for Sodom."

"Germany is ready to renew the engagement she took under the treaty not to attack us. But what is to be done? Her signature will add nothing to the original signature and fresh action can, by applying only the portions of the Versailles treaty, become equivalent to attempts to denounce the rest of the document."

"If some day Germany, with or without Russia, attempts to disturb Poland and then incorporate Austria, it will have regained the hegemony of central Europe, and the next step will be the seizure of our provinces."

"We cannot be asked, while Germany refuses to disarm, to diminish our means of protection. Our life is at stake."

Asks About Pact.

Premier Herriot is preparing a note to Germany asking a series of specific questions concerning the guarantee pact which Berlin has offered and its intentions concerning joining the League of Nations.

Wilhelmsstrasse will be told that the eastern frontiers must be guaranteed the same as the Rhineland, and that admittance to the German organization is a matter of military necessity.

It is expected that the note will be sent to Berlin at the end of the week, simultaneously with notes from London, Rome, and Belgium.

NATION MAKES MAY 1 DAY OF CHILD HEALTH

New York, March 29.—The American Child Health association today announced that twenty national organizations, with an aggregate membership of 10,000,000, would join this year in observance of May 1 as Child Health Day, so that local programs to concentrate attention on child health already had been arranged in thirty states.

President Coolidge has given his endorsement and interest has been shown abroad by the king and queen of the Belgians, the queen of Roumania, and Princess Mary of England.

The President, in a letter to Secretary Hoover, who is head of the Child Health association, expressed confidence "that the people will be glad to make May Day the occasion of rededicating themselves to the happy task of safeguarding our most precious asset—our 35,000,000 children."

Organizations joining in this year's observance included the General Federation of Women's Clubs, American Red Cross, American Legion, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, National Tuberculosis Association, National Amateur Athletic Federation, and the National Playground and Recreation Association.

FARM PRICES TO BRING INCREASE IN 1925 ACREAGE

Wakefield, Mass., March 29.—Reports from 50,000 farmers indicate the prices received by crops last year have led them to plan increases in 1925 acreage, the United States department of agriculture says. The state says the expected increases over last year include 14 per cent in spring wheat, 23 per cent in corn, 8.8 per cent in oats, and 23 per cent in barley.

UNDERWOOD IS TAKEN BY DEATH; OF LOOP RENOWN

Drury Kingsley Underwood, for thirty-six years a noted figure in Chicago's news-paper and theatrical circles, died last night in the Allentown hospital. He had been under treatment at the hospital for two weeks, and last Friday went into a coma.

For the last few years Mr. Underwood had been fighting illness. Three years ago he was taken ill and was confined to his bed. A benefit performance, participated in by friends in the theatrical world, and supported by the newspapermen he had worked with yielded $5,000. With the aid of this he fought back to health.

He was considered the unofficial historian of the loop. His friends ranged from the newsboy to prominent figures in the financial world, and such men as George Ade, Brand Whitlock, and others with whom he had worked in his earlier days.

SUPERBANDIT'S LAWYERS "WILL STARTLE" STATE

Promise Surprises as He Reads in His Cell.

Hartford, Conn., March 29.—[By the Associated Press.]—Gerald Chapman, mail looter and jail breaker, continued to read books today while his attorneys held a final conference to polish off their plans for his defense against the charge that he murdered Patrolman James Skelly in New Britain Oct. 12 last.

With the end of the conference, attended by Frederick J. Grohl and Nathan O. Freedman, Chapman's two chief counsel, announced that the two day court recess had resulted in developments which promised to furnish some surprises.

State Goes Ahead Today.

The state's attorney, Hugh M. Alcorn, will continue presenting evidence tomorrow. Twenty-eight witnesses already have been put on the stand by the state. They told a carefully pieced together tale, mapping out Chapman's alleged movements since early last April until the night of Saturday, Oct. 11, the night of the New Britain crime. When two of them since then in the Old Colony Inn at Meriden, Conn., will be an hour's motor jaunt of Davidson & Leventhal's department store, in which Skelly met his death.

One of the two, Lillian Knell, a 17 year old servant, testified that she had supplied Chapman with an alarm clock at his request before the two made their way to bed in rooms he had reserved earlier in the evening.

How Chapman Spent Sunday.

Attachments of the state prison at Wethersfield, near here, reported that Chapman had spent his Sunday in apparent unconcern over the coming week's court proceedings, which will mean life or death to him. He took his usual light exercise in the yard, managed to a guard, ate his meals with a gusto, and spent the rest of his time reading.

The Chapman jury, ordered into the custody of four deputy sheriffs until it has completed its task, was taken on a two hour motor trip and spent the rest of the day at its hotel.

25,000 FRENCH CATHOLICS IN PROTEST PARADE

VANNES, France, March 29.—[By the Associated Press.]—A procession of Catholics, in which it is estimated, there were 25,000 persons, marched through the streets of Vannes today in absolute silence. It was headed by Cardinal Charost and other high prelates and members of the civil government.

The paraders marched to the fair grounds, where the cardinal and others addressed them.

A resolution of protest against the suppression of the French embassy to the Vatican and the introduction of secularization laws in Alsace and proclaiming a determination "to organize for the defense of religious liberty" was passed.

Catholics at Rouen also held a protest meeting. At Le Mans a meeting which endorsed Premier Herriot's policies was held.

GIBSON SIGNS FOR TUNNEY TO MEET GIBBONS JUNE 12

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, and Manager Billy Gibson arrived in Chicago yesterday from St. Paul, where Tunney won the popular decision over Harry Greb, middleweight champion, last Friday night.

Gibson announced he has signed for Tunney to meet Tom Gibbons before the Polo Grounds A. C. of New York on June 12. He has accepted 20 per cent for Tunney's end. If this match is not closed Gibbons intends to take Tunney to California, where he has several matches in view for his champion.

Louisville Wants Tunney.

Tunney's manager also asserted he will not permit Tunney to fight Greb for the milk fund on May 28. He intends to remain in Chicago until the proposed match for the Polo grounds between Tunney and Gibbons is closed or called off. Gibbons may also accept a proposition to match Tunney with some well known light heavyweight in Louisville on May 15.

Gibson asserted he does not believe Gibbons wants to meet Tunney, as Manager Eddie Kane has been offered 30 per cent to meet the American champion at the Polo grounds. As the bout would draw in the neighborhood of $400,000, Manager Eddie Kane has offered to turn down such an offer, but he thought his fighter would be beaten.

Kane to New York.

Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons and Mattox, who is to meet De Forest at the Polo Grounds A. C. left yesterday for New York. De Forest made a hurried trip to Chicago and then to St. Paul to close the Gibbons-Tunney match, but went back east with only Tunney's signature to the articles.

Unless Kane has a change of heart, there is a possibility Gibbons may be matched with Harry Wills, the colored heavyweight. Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, recently stated he would give an answer on April 1 as to whether he would permit Harry to fight Gibbons. If Mullins is agreeable, a Gibbons-Wills match may be the feature of the milk fund benefit on May 28.

Gibson and Tunney are stopping at the Hotel Sherman, and Manager Bill expects to have some definite fight news to announce in a day or two.

Sammy Mandell of Rockford, claimant of the world's lightweight title, will be in Chicago today to resume training for his bout with Eddie Long on June 12. Wills on Friday night. Manager Eddie Kane will be back from New York in time to handle his fighter in this bout, which will determine the champion. Manager Eddie Kane has been sufficiently to permit him to take on other matches.

Eddie Anderson, the Mattox bantamweight, who has won sixteen straight fights since he joined Eddie Long's stable, will clash with Tim O'Dowd of Atlantic at Louisville tonight.

Edie Heron, the Louisville promoter, will be in New York to review arrangements for two bouts for his stable on May 12, the night before the Kentucky Derby.

Jacqu

Amateurs to Give
Two Plays at Bazaar
of St. James Parish

BY NANCY R.

There's to be more to the St. James parish bazaar on April 15 than the mere buying of future Christmas, birthday, and wedding whatnots. Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson tells me. Two grand shows are scheduled for the amusement of those who come to shop and the rest will take place at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and will be the Punch and Judy show that the most little group of Chicago females, except the "Scribblers," puts on with such success. They gave it in February, you may remember, at the Art club, after a gay dinner party to which those outside the cast came dressed as children.

It was Mrs. John Alder Carpenter, I believe, who created, designed, and staged the show for the Scribblers, and at the February performance Mrs. Ryerson, with the help of the Punch, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank was a vivacious Judy. Mrs. John Root portrayed the hangman, Ginny Carpenter was the policeman, and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. was the beagle.

For the bazaar performance a few changes in the cast have been made, owing to holidays, the press of other affairs, and the like. Mrs. Baldwin will still be Punch, but Mrs. John Root will take the part of Judy, while Mrs. Graham Allard and Mrs. Winterbotham will share honors in the other parts, playing the alligator, the policeman, the hangman as they are needed. Cecil Barnes is to be the reader.

Then in the evening the North Shore Theater guild players will give the scenes from "Fashion," that "way back when bit of drama, at which they have proved themselves so adept and so enchanting. The women of the St. James parish are indeed to be congratulated on having obtained two such skilled sets of amateur entertainers to help swell the profits of their bazaar.

Day's News in Society

Lake Forest in May, with its deep jagged ravines lined with violets and hepaticas, its shady winding roads banked with lilac and bridal wreath bushes, and its trim pictureque town square shining in the spring sun, is sufficient explanation for the annual immigration of society folk to the confines of that fashionable suburb for the summer months. The summer residents are to be quite numerous this year, and many interesting changes in the way of housings are noted. The Oliver Wilsons on Spring lane have rented their place from May 15 to John F. L. Curtis, while they spend the summer abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kelley (Daphne Field), who have been living with Mrs. Kelley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanfield, at 1550 State parkway, since they returned from their European honeymoon, have taken the French house and plan to move out on May 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Winter of 1447 State street are to have the Bertrand Walkers' residence on Illinois road, while the Walkers will go east for the summer.

The Clifford W. Barnes estate on Sherman road has been rented to D. J. Malley from June 1 on. The Frederick W. Keiths of 237 East Delaware place are rented out of their residence on the Loyola university campus and are to occupy that after June 15. Marvin E. Pool of 512 Barry avenue has taken Miss Florence Underwood's place on Washington road.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd B. Evans, who have been residing in Pasadena, plan to occupy after April 15 a house on Rose terrace.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Marshall are spending three weeks at French Lick, Ind.

The Red, White, and Blue club will benefit by the proceeds of a benefit card party to be given this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Charles King at 357 Fullerton parkway.

Mr. Edward L. Cudahy is general chairman of the committee in charge of a card party to be given at the Trianon ballroom on Saturday afternoon, April 25, for the benefit of the fund for building and equipping a new gymnasium for Rosary college at River Forest. Mrs. Julius T. Benedict is vice chairman. The Rosary College benefactors' league is sponsoring the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Vaux of the Drake hotel have recently been spending their months in Florida, and will sail the last of April for a summer in Europe.

Miss Frances Crow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Crow of Evanston, had decided upon April 25 as the date for her marriage to John Gideon Scarle, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. Howard Scarle, also of Evanston. The ceremony will take place at Christ church, Winnetka, at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and will be followed by a reception at the Smoke Country club, Glenview.

Hubby Rushes In.
We had a guest for dinner, and as a special honor I used some of the tea towels which she made for me before I was married, to dry dishes that evening.

They were only half the size I ordinarily use, and hubby, drying dishes in the presence of the guest, did not know from whence the towels hailed, announced, "Next time get poison ivy you can use these for handkerchiefs; that's about all they are good for."

Plain Spoken.

I was visiting my girl friend in a distant town. I had only been there a few minutes—unpacking my things in Margaret's bedroom—when a neighbor, a neighbor, a neighbor, was complimenting Margaret. All at once my gaze centered on a little ivory frame with a boy's picture in it.

"O," I said, "I do think those little ivory frames are the cutest things."

Wherupon Margaret said in a low voice, "Mary, Veins gave it to me for a birthday present." M. D.

THE HICKS ARE GETTING WISE TO TRACTION FIGHTS

BY SCRUTATOR.

The present traction fight is in a way enjoyable to those who have done their bit in traction trouncing in other days and other places.

The writer cannot claim to have been a champion member of the trolley tameration, but held a card with a company twice a low moral member.

It is momentarily pleasant to see the old circus horses trotted into the ring and doing their old stuff. It brings a little glow, an illusion of youth in keeping with springtime.

There was the day! It was great fighting. In the first place our cause was just. Even if the original traction promoters and franchise grinders had now gotten away with it, we should all be charged, in their faint. They tried to and often thought they had. If the operations we assailed were not in fact the cruel giants and devouring octopi that we pictured them to be, we were honestly deceived and so were they. They believed themselves to be politically omnipotent, and as long as the old barrel held out, their hordes of yesmen and political parasites kept telling them so.

As against this reminiscent pleasure in witnessing the combat, there is something of pain to be considered. There are penalties in trying for intellectual honesty and clarity. Few who have witnessed the revolution in the problem of city transport which came after the rout of the old gang, the elevation of the price of wage base, and the advent of the automobile have enjoyed their disillusionment.

It is more thrilling to tilt against corporate giants, than it is to "unmask" the ancient masters of the traction myth, than to undertake a sober appraisal of a more business situation, in which no such monsters roamed or devoured, and the heroes of the past have degenerated into demagogic acrobats. "Sham" fighting against corporate cripples. There's so much fun in it. More than one old time traction buster woke up six or seven years ago to the fact that what he was doing was helping to pile up money for men already rich enough, by exploiting outward prejudices against default and thoroughbred interests. If late years traction has been closer to the poorhouse than to the state house or other seats of power.

About the cheapest bunk in America today is traction fighting, and for a would-be statesman it's the safest role, provided the people will still swallow the old slogan.

But will they? Six years ago a publicist, who had achieved fame and wealth in the course of a career crowded with American municipal history, sat down to negotiate a settlement with one of the biggest traction barons of them all, swiftest by the writer on his fall from grace with accommodation with the plutes, he said in effect: "Son, the old stuff is worn out in my town. The people think we are keeping the thing alive for box ice reasons. It's as stale as the bloody dirt."

It is certainly true that traction fights have become passe in the cities, where the most picturesque struggles were staged. The Hicks fall for it no more. The writer has been told that it will be good for a generation yet in the biggest cities, by those who subscribe to William Allen White's estimate of metropolitan political motivation. But they are probably mistaken.

Week's Bond Offerings

Placed at $83,000,000

New York, March 29.—An annuited from 111 New bond offerings last week totalled approximately $83,000,000, an increase of $1,000,000 over the volume of new financing in the preceding week. Foreign financing included the extension for another six months of a $3,000,000 loan to Jugoslavia and several small loans and credits to German and Austrian industries.

Mortgages were completed for a $1,000,000 state of São Paulo loan which will be offered next week, among the larger operations in progress this week is the completion of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad's refunding program which will probably involve the sale of a $40,000,000 bond issue.

STOCK OFFERING BY GOVERNMENT UPSETS LONDON

BY LORIMER HAMMOND.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

NEW YORK, March 30.—[Wednesday]—The London market was much better and the volume of trading improved. Double extra.

The rubber market had a good, sound week. With the commodity at $1.60, the market has shown a steady improvement, but additional price increases are needed before the rubber men will be satisfied that the product is fetching a just return on the investment. It is said that the cost is a minimum of $75 to work an acre on a rubber plantation, while the maximum acreage valuation on the market is around $20.

The New York Times.

New York, March 25.—(Special.) It will probably be remembered that six or eight weeks ago, when the rise of stock exchange prices slackened, Wall street opinion was fairly unanimous that a substantial downward reaction was impending. The advance of January had been fast and furious; it had converged on stocks of a highly speculative sort. It had been conducted by groups of speculators who bought with borrowed money for the purpose of making as soon as practicable a profit to themselves, and it was grounded on purchases by small investment interests based on buying of a mob of small outside speculators whose accounts were "marginized" as closely as stock exchange practice permitted. All the experience of Wall street indicated what the end of this would be.

Expectations Not Realized.

But the end did not come when it was expected. A day or one point or two point declines would be followed by renewed professional activities on the side of rising prices. Speculative stocks, which had been advanced 20, 40, and 50 per cent without the slightest change in their companies' affairs to warrant it, would be run up five or six points in a day after each occasional reaction. Then, as usual, Wall street began to talk of a market which was too strongly entrenched to be shaken at all.

What had happened, however, was that a more widespread reaction had been made far more suddenly and that a reckoning had been incurred, much more violent than it would have been had the readjustment come when it was first predicted. Last week's foolish "arguments" for the decline, based on news which was wholly in line with previous expectation, was little more than

What Public Wants.

What the general public to day wants, however—especially that part of it which watches the stock market without ceasing in it—is the significance of this heavy break in prices as regards the general business outlook. If the rise on the stock exchange last autumn indicated a belief in a notable turn for the better in the financial and industrial situation, does the March decline mean that the expectation was mistaken, that things have suddenly taken a turn for the worse?

The answer which people familiar both with Wall street and with the business situation are likely to make is that the trade recovery is still distinctly underway, that the good results of the fall elections and the fortunate harvests are operating, regardless of the stock exchange, but that the sanguine American temperament has once more shown how easily it is to expect too much, to expect it too soon, and as Wall street puts it, to "overdiscount" actual results on the stock exchange.

Blame Artificial Tampering.

It is as true today as it ever was that the stock market's movement points to the future trend of finance and industry. But it is possible to tamper with any machinery which, under normal influence, will force the weather correctly. If the barometer has been forced up by artificial means for the last few days, it will fall as soon as the artificial pressure is relaxed. It will go back to where it stood when the tampering with the machinery began, and usually the moment of the fall will carry it temporarily below where it rightly belongs.

Every prolonged "bull movement" of the past on the stock exchange has proved the truth of this. The 20 and 30 per cent reactions in the middle of the "boom" illustrated it. In the famous case of 1924, the market and the country lost its head in the "overdiscounting" process, yet when a long period of high prosperity was actually ahead of us, the break in prices came so swiftly and so suddenly as to reduce the stock exchange membership for a day to technical insolvency. But even the fall in prices of May 9, 1921, reaching what was then called "panic proportions" was not followed by hard times, or even by general trade reaction.

Outlook Is Unchanged.

The present business outlook is exactly what it was three months ago, with the judgment of practical men regarding it possibly modified by the total absence of speculative purchases by mechanical and consumers. The reason is that the "overdiscounting" process, when a long period of high prosperity was actually ahead of us, the break in prices came so swiftly and so suddenly as to reduce the stock exchange membership for a day to technical insolvency. But even the fall in prices of May 9, 1921, reaching what was then called "panic proportions" was not followed by hard times, or even by general trade reaction.
